Bats in the Belfry: how ecology can coexist with property development

Speaker: Dr Philip Fermor, Managing Director of Middlemarch Environmental Ltd

Middlemarch Environmental undertakes specialist ecological services throughout the UK for a wide range of private and public sector projects. It implements a range of ecological assessment projects specialising in the development and delivery of corporate and site-based Biodiversity Action Plans. An example of the work carried out by Middlemarch was the coordination of biodiversity assessments for over 1600 sites owned and managed by Severn Trent Water.

Dr Fermor is responsible for managing a range of commercial consultancy projects, including ecological and hydroecological assessments; management plan assembly; protected species licensing; and training. He gained his PhD through research into the hydrology of former industrial land. He has extensive experience in the preparation of Environmental Statements for major private and public sector projects.

Dr Fermor will cover ecological surveys and biodiversity assessments as well as mitigation and compensation in relation to the discovery of protected species on a proposed development site.
