

Construction Law Bytes

Thomas Vale Construction – Our People, Our Culture and Our Commitments

An introduction to Thomas Vale Construction: their history, culture and working ethos; their commitment to sustainability and to Corporate Social Responsibility; and an overview of their current key projects in the region.

Speakers

Neil Bradley – Head of Pre Construction and Design

Neil is responsible for the management and delivery of the design process across all projects. With 20 years experience he has a comprehensive understanding of both the pre-construction process and site based considerations. Working closely with key clients, associated professionals and supply chain, Neil plays a critical role in ensuring value management, whole life costing and commitment to sustainability.

Bill Munn – Group HR and Best Practice Director

Bill originally joined as Safety Manager/Training Manager and was later appointed Best Practice Director. He has visited Detroit as part of a City Regeneration Programme to observe construction best practice in the USA and 'Lean' construction; and Toronto to observe world class organisations operating 'Lean' manufacturing processes. Bill is also responsible for the group HR strategy and compliance for Health and Safety, Quality, Training and Development, Recruitment and Employment Legislation.

Matt Wisdom – Environmental Technician

Matt analyses environmental data and extrapolate trends using SPSS (Statistical analysis programme). He also provides an understanding of economic processes and how they relate to business, particularly in the environmental sector; and examines legislation and policy frameworks, developing an understanding of how policy is developed, influenced and becomes law whilst assessing the environmental impact of new build developments of several major housing associations in the UK.
