What now for Investment in Schools?

Speaker: Bob Vince, Interserve Project Services.

Bob Vince will examine the implications that the change of Government has had on school investment programmes and discuss some issues that may face schools and local authorities.

He will discuss previous directions that capital investment strategies were taking and what the changes to Academies, Building Schools for the Future and Local Education Partnerships may mean. He will also discuss the options for doing "more with less" where capital investment is scarce.

Part of the Interserve Group, Interserve Project Services is one of the world's foremost support services and construction companies. Operating in the public and private sectors in the UK and internationally, it provides advice, design, construction and support services to schools and colleges.

Bob heads up the Education and Local Government sectors for Interserve. He has worked on Education projects for the last 10 years and in that time delivered over 50 school projects in the PFI and Building Schools for the Future sectors. Bob is currently chair of both the Leeds and Sandwell Local Education Partnerships.
